

Risk to Recovery

A clearer path to better outcomes

Effective care for substance use disorder (SUD) has suffered from confusion about treating a disease that is chemical and behavioral. The result has been a fractured ecosystem where access, quality, and outcomes vary widely across networks. Meanwhile, lives hang in the balance.

It's time for a comprehensive substance use treatment and recovery platform.

Our risk-to-recovery platform connects ecosystem stakeholders at every stage to identify patients at risk, prevent escalation in their condition, and support patients struggling with substance use. We're creating a clear path from risk to recovery.

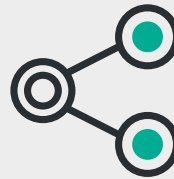

HOW THE PLATFORM WORKS

The optimization process starts with a comprehensive treatment ecosystem assessment at the market level.

We aggregate and analyze data to help health plans reduce cost by addressing risk before it escalates.

We use a variety of in-workflow methods to educate and enable providers to intervene in all stages of escalation.

Clinical support teams connect patients with both high-tech and high-touch care to build their own route to recovery.

Partnering with Health Plans

Our platform addresses treatment gaps for substance use disorder.

The risk-to-recovery platform offers end-to-end network optimization so health plans, providers, and patients all benefit, addressing market-specific barriers to treatment so that each market gets customized, data-driven solutions. And because it starts with risk and ends with recovery, the entire patient journey is transformed.

Equipping Providers

Our platform combines the best of high-tech and high-touch.

Providers need efficient tools that integrate into their existing workflow to make smart clinical decisions quickly and accurately. With our platform, they get integrated intelligence, interactive decision support tools, access to a clinical support team, and comprehensive treatment options that support long-term recovery.

Supporting Patients

Our platform ensures patients get better care.

Patients struggling with substance use face barriers everywhere. Our care teams help remove those barriers and ensure each patient gets the appropriate treatment with personalized solutions. We connect patients with community, address social determinants of health, and provide continuity of care for sustained recovery.
